Unusual Case Expected to Be
In Jury's Hands by This Afternoon

FIVE VERDICTS LISTED

Lila's Lawyers Would Regard
Any Verdict But First
Degree as Victory

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

BUFFALO, N. Y., Apr. 1.—By night-fall, Lila Jmerson, the "red lilac of the Cayugas" who is on trial for the hammer murder of the wife of Henri Marchand, noted sculptor and her secret lover, probably will know her fate. The strange case of the Indian girl artist is expected to be in the hands of the jury by mid-afternoon.

Any one of five verdicts is possible. They are:

1. Murder in the first degree. Punishable by death in the electric chair.
2. Second degree murder. Punishable by imprisonment under an indeterminate sentence—the minimum of which is twenty years, the maximum life in prison.
3. First degree manslaughter. Punishable by imprisonment not exceeding twenty years.
4. Second degree manslaughter. Punishable by a term not exceeding fifteen years, or a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or both.
5. Acquittal.

Lila's lawyers would regard any verdict other than murder in the first degree as a victory. Admittedly, District Attorney Guy B. Moore has built up a strong case against the dark-eyed defendant.

The most incriminating evidence against Lila was that of Nancy Bowen, a superstitious sixty-six year old Indian woman, who confessed she beat Mrs. Clothilde Marchand to death with a hammer when she became convinced she was a "witch" responsible for the death of her husband, "Sassafraz Charlie" Bowen and planning to commit other deaths, including her own. The State contends Lila influenced this old woman through letters and ouija board "communications."

Failure of Lila to take the stand in her behalf may have some effect upon the jury. She passed up the chance to refute testimony that she accompanied Mrs. Bowen to Buffalo a week before the murder and pointed out the "victim" to her old Indian friend. Also that she went with Mrs. Bowen all the way from the Cattaraugus reservation to the vicinity of the Marchand home on the day of crime, a distance of forty miles.

Testimony was also given that not only did Miss Jmerson buy the hammer with which Mrs. Marchand was killed but that she also purchased chloroform. And, in killing the sculptor's wife, old Nancy made use of chloroform.

The closing addresses to the jury were to be made this morning. John Y. Maloney was to open for the defense. He was to be followed by Prosecutor Moore for the State, after which Judge F. Bret Thorn will give his instructions to the jury. Then the jury will retire to deliberate the fate of the Indian girl whose love for a famous sculptor, for whom she had posed, was according to the State, the motive for the crime.

Mrs. Walter West, of 254 Madison street, entertained at dinner and bridge on Saturday evening. The guests were: Miss Mary Rogers, Miss Jane Rogers, Miss Laura Ellis, Miss Anna Heritage and Miss Eva Soliday.

PANAMANIAN LAUGH WHEN THEY ARE GRIEF STRICKEN

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on Panama, its oddities, life and people as seen by a special correspondent of the Courier and International News Service, who recently visited that country.)

By William Parker
PANAMA CITY, Panama, Apr. 1.—A Hollywood manufacturer of sound and emotion would be considerably surprised and annoyed at the reception his films receive in Central America.

The native element laughs uproariously during emotional and heart-rending scenes. But, by a strange psychology, the native is more deeply touched than an American by these scenes. The native's laughter is a form of hysteria and is his reaction to anguish, and is a familiar scene at funerals.

A striking incident was related by J. Blevins, manager of the Cinema Pan-Americano Film Exchange and the five Wilcox-Saenger theatres in Panama.

MALE CHORUS FEATURES MEETING AT NEWTOWN

Annual Visit of Singers Was Keenly Anticipated And Much Enjoyed

DR. GREEN NEXT WEEK

NEWTOWN, Apr. 1.—The annual visit of the chorus of the Men's Bible Class of the Central Baptist Church, Trenton, an event looked forward to with keen anticipation each year, was the musical feature of the Newtown Men's Meeting on Sunday afternoon. This class taught by Judge Warren Davis, of the U. S. Court, has been an important factor for many years in the religious life of New Jersey's capitol city, hundreds of men attending the sessions each Sunday. The chorus, under the direction of W. J. Fleming, sang several selections, including "Sing, Praises Unto the King," "Just As I Am," "Crossing the Bar" and "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me." Roy Johnson sang a solo, "Behold, the Master Passes By," and Henry Johnson and W. J. Fleming sang "When I Look in My Dear Saviour's Face." Mrs. Andrew D. Carlton was the piano accompanist for the chorus.

A stirring and inspiring address was given by Carmon J. Ross, principal of the Doylestown Borough Schools, who was introduced by Dr. William A. Roberts, president of the Newtown School Board. Mr. Ross said he had first intended speaking on "The Church in Politics," but changed his mind as he realized the subject was too full of dynamite. However, he declared the church should be militant, and that the Christian citizen should have an active part in politics. He took as his theme "The Pursuit of Goodness." The daily papers, he said, give emphasis to the bad instead of the good. In both the church and the educational world, the women are depended upon to do the bulk of the work. There should be a lure for goodness, he said, just as there is for adventure.

Unfortunately, according to Mr. Ross, the hero of the school is not the successful contestant in scholastic or declamation work, but, instead, the sports champion.

Jesus is the great example of goodness, said Mr. Ross, and He broke down the formal goodness of the day. It was the custom of the Jews of His day to measure goodness by the yardstick. Goodness is something more deep and abiding than just observing rules. The scribes and Pharisees had 33 ways in which the Sabbath might be desecrated. As the result, religion (Continued on Page 4)

YANCEY AND TWO COMPANIONS NOW BERMUDA-BOUND

Hop Off from College Point,
N. Y., Early This Morning

A VERY DIFFICULT FEAT

Route Over Expanse of Sea
Means 759 Miles of Probable Crosswinds

COLLEGE POINT, N. Y., April 1.—(INS)—Captain Lewis A. Yancey and two companions took off shortly after 7 o'clock today for Bermuda.

They hope to bring Bermuda within eight hours of New York.

William Alexander, veteran pilot, was at the controls of the amphibian. Zen Bonck operated the radio.

The flight is considered one of the most difficult feats of aerial navigation.

The start was made from the water off the landing of the Edo Aircraft Co.'s plant here. The craft is a Stinson monoplane powered with a Wright whirlwind motor. It has been equipped with special pontoons which may be removed so that the craft may be used as a land plane.

The difficult part of the flight will be the navigation, according to aeronautical experts. Captain Yancey, a master mariner, is to steer the pilot. The navigation entails a flight over a 759-mile expanse of sea, which is swept by many crosswind currents. A tiny island is the goal.

Captain Yancey guided the Bellanca monoplane Pathfinder from Old Orchard, Maine, to Rome, last summer. This flight was one of the closing adventures of the last ocean-flying season and the present flight ushers in the new season.

Bonck is to be in constant communication with radio stations in New York City. The plane carries both long and short wave receiving and sending sets. Besides the radio equipment, which weighs 140 pounds, the pilot is carrying 258 gallons of fuel and oil, enough for ten hours of cruising at 105 miles an hour.

In addition to these supplies, it is equipped with sea anchors, 100 fathoms of line, a Very pistol for rocketing lights into the sky, repair parts, tools, food and water.

Most of the extra equipment is carried to meet the emergency which would be created if the plane overshoot its tiny target.

RECORD A GOOD ONE

Cite Work in Pushing Tariff
Bill During Brief Tenure
At Washington

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 1.—Joseph R. Grundy's candidacy for the Republican nomination to succeed himself in the United States Senate was vigorously endorsed yesterday by the board of directors of the Manufacturers' Club.

The Senator's record in public affairs, as a private citizen, covering a period of forty years, and his services in behalf of the State since appointed to the Washington post by Governor Fisher were cited as sufficient recommendation to warrant the people in rallying behind his candidacy.

In the appeal to the electorate of the State, the manufacturers praised Grundy for refusing to make any embarrassing alliances with professional politicians.

The statement of the board of directors related:

"Recognizing the present primary contest for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Pennsylvania involves considerations of the most vital importance to this Commonwealth and its citizenship, we, the Board of Directors of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia, take opportunity to record our own firm convictions and to address ourselves to our fellow citizens throughout the State."

"In its present junior United States Senator, Joseph R. Grundy, Pennsylvania has in Washington a representative and public servant who, although for more than forty years energetically active in behalf of the welfare of this Commonwealth and its citizenship has never before sought or held any State or Federal public office."

"Throughout those more than forty years that he has been a student and staunch defender of Pennsylvania and her needs he has become such a recognized authority upon that subject that, when invited to appear before the Senate Lobby Investigation Committee in October, 1929, he presented what was (Continued on Page Four)

MAY HOLD MUTT SHOW DURING BOYS' WEEK

Suggestion Made and Idea
Meets With Popular Favor of Those Interested

TO ANNOUNCE DETAILS

Have you a mutt in your home? If so, get him or her ready for the big show.

Now there may be some people who do not know just what a mutt is.

Those who keep informed through the medium of the comic strips in the newspapers may be under the impression that a mutt is one who more or less is the victim of some prank which is generally staged at his expense.

But, no! That is not the kind of a mutt which is meant.

There is, in the present day American slang, another use for the word mutt. It refers to a dog of no particular breed. Just a common ordinary dog—the kind that eats from garbage pails instead of from china plates. The kind that sits up on his hind legs on moonlight nights and howls.

The mutt show is probably going to be held in connection with the Boys' Week. This idea was suggested at a meeting of some of those who are interested in Boys' Week.

The suggestion is to be placed before the Boys' Week committee and if it is adopted full and complete details will be announced.

It is believed that a mutt show will meet with popular favor, especially among the boys. Nearly every boy has a dog and will eagerly grasp the opportunity to place him on show.

All that will be necessary will be to start at once and give the dog a bath daily. Groom him well each day and get him all dolled up ready for the big show.

They will be proud boys who at the conclusion of that show gaze with fond eyes upon their pet which has been awarded a ribbon.

ENUMERATORS ARE COUNTING NOSES IN BUCKS COUNTY

Work of Taking Census Enumeration Begins in Real Earnestness

TO ASK 24 QUESTIONS

Lots of the Questions Are Personal Ones; Farmer
Must Answer 233

Two hundred and seventy census enumerators are swarming over Montgomery and Bucks counties, under the direction of Supervisor Monroe H. Anders, ringing doorbells and asking questions, and doubtless millions of housewives are wondering how to act when the census man calls.

Here's how:

Tell him everything he asks. If he seems to be putting questions that are not any of Uncle Sam's business you can make him show you the specific question on the official list, but the chances are that he won't go off that list.

Federal law provides that anyone who refuses to answer correctly the questions the government wants answered or answer them to the best of his knowledge shall be subject to a maximum penalty of a $100 fine and 60 days of imprisonment. No one has ever been penalized under this statute, but census takers have often used the law as a threat when answers were refused.

The rest of your conduct, when the census enumerator calls, is optional. You can keep him standing in the doorway or you can invite him into the parlor and serve ice cream and cake.

His only job is to ask the stipulated questions and get the answers as best he can. He has no right to do more.

The enumerators will be around early in April. The 1930 censuses of population, agriculture and employment will be taken simultaneously, beginning April 2. These are the 24 questions they will ask in the population census, which will cover approximately 122,000,000 persons:

1. Relation to head of family, including a statement as to the "home-maker" in each family.
2. Whether home is owned or rented.
3. Value of home, if owned, or the monthly rental, if rented.
4. Radio set? (Yes or No.)
5. Does this family live on a farm?
6. Sex.
7. Color or race.
8. Age at last birthday.
9. Marital condition.
10. Age at first marriage.
11. Attended school or college any time since Sept. 1, 1929?
12. Able to read or write.
13. Place of birth. (State or country.)
14. Father's place of birth. (State or country.)
15. Mother's place of birth. (State or country.)
16. Mother-tongue of each foreign-born person.
17. Year of immigration to United States, if foreign-born.
18. Whether naturalized, if foreign-born.
19. Whether able to speak English, if foreign-born.
20. Occupation of each gainful worker.
21. Industry in which employed.
22. Whether employer, employee or working on own account.
23. Whether actually at work.
24. Whether a military or naval veteran of the United States, and if so, in what expedition or war.

Whoever is at home to answer these questions must supply the information for everyone living in the house. In most cases, this will mean the housewife as the man of the house probably will be at work when the census enumerator calls. (Continued on Page 4)

Eclipse of Sun Visible in California

MRS. ISABEL M. LEWIS CHART SHOWING PATH OF THE ECLIPSE.

In order to maintain unbroken the historical record of solar eclipses, it has been arranged to send Mrs. Isabel M. Lewis, the observatory woman astronomer, to Honey Lake, Calif., to observe the total eclipse there at 11:05 a. m. on April 28. A specially built camera with a 46-inch focal length and a powerful lens will be used by Mrs. Lewis.

The time, 11:05 a. m.; the date, April 28; the place, Honey Lake, California; and the event—a solar eclipse. And so, if you would view the latest manifestation of solar and lunar phenomena, you must go West, for the eclipse will be only visible in California, particularly in the region of Honey Lake.

Varied preparations are being made to observe the eclipse in all its stages. Captain Freeman, superintendent of the Naval Observatory at Washington, D. C., is to send the observatory's famous woman astronomer to observe the eclipse, which is of great importance, as it is to be a total obscuration of the sun, lasting for a second and a half. A specially built camera with a 46-inch focal length and a powerful lens, capable of taking pictures 8 by 10 inches, will be used by the woman astronomer. Mrs. Lewis will endeavor to photograph the sun's corona—a beautiful gaseous effect that is only discernible when it projects beyond the sun's disc during the period of the eclipse. It is expected that an intensive study of the corona will reveal new facts about the sun.

Aviation is to be pressed into service for the complete survey of the eclipse. Two naval planes, carrying special built and strategically mounted cameras, will soar into space in an endeavor to obtain a complete pictorial record of the eclipse. Very good photographs were obtained during the eclipse that occurred in the Philippines last May, but the record is not yet complete. With the eclipse lasting less than two seconds and the moon's shadow only a half mile wide, it will need skill and precision of a high order to record completely the path of the moon and its effect on Old Sol as it journeys between that planet and the earth.

FODDER

To many persons breakfast does not seem genuine unless they have coffee; to others coffee is a poison that causes insomnia, loss of faith and social unrest. These folk, however, need not eat their rations dry. There are substitute beverages that cause them no discomfort and they can drink freely and contrive to live happily in an imperfect world. Every man to his rations. The savage in Africa delights in hot milk in a smoked gourd; the Eskimo can down whole blubber; the Chinaman enjoys birds' nests and all such.

Ordinary mortals, who are simple folk and wedded to old-fashioned ideas, are prone to wrath when they come upon the writings of a cynic in the public prints, and yearn to hang him for the glory of God and the protection of the pure in heart. In this, as in some other matters, they are quite unfair.

The cynic whose clever phrases irritate and annoy the majority serves a select clientele. Those who compose it scorn the popular faiths and dogmas. When Heaven, Home and Mother are mentioned, they turn a sickly green and hasten from the table. A platitude affects them to the point of nausea. They are constitutionally incapable of enjoying what gum-chewers enjoy.

If the African yearns for hot milk and will not eat birds' nests, must he perish? If the coffee drinker cannot stomach blubber, must he be sent hungry to his bed? There is sufficient variety for all tastes. Why the bother?

If the average man comes upon an article wherein a cynic lays about him with a stick, let him not risk his soul by swearing. Let him turn to another page and read the nice story about the miller's daughter who married the earl.

COMMUNITY ASSETS

Gadding children have since the dawn of recorded history been a worry to careful parents. The children of Father Bristol are not always likely to get into trouble when they wander from the municipal fireside with the coming of the winter and summer vacation seasons, but they do spend money in great quantities in other cities and states though their legendary parent may need it.

This undesirable situation suggests something. Is there nothing the community can do to halt this vacation exodus? Laws and ordinances cannot help. Appeals to civic pride and community spirit fall on deaf ears. But there is a solution.

People spend their vacations away from home for two reasons. They want a change of environment and they want to do things for which they have not the facilities at home. Little can be done to keep at home those who consider a vacation synonymous with travel. But any community can provide some of those things which the vacationist is compelled to seek elsewhere.

Playgrounds and public parks make it less essential that parents take their children to the seashore or into the country for the summer. Anything that reduces the number of production hours lost through vacations and keeps money at home is a community asset.

Friends are people who love everything except great success.

SYNOPSIS

General Crack, soldier of fortune, has routed the enemy and prepares to crown King Leopold emperor. The latter steals away from the camp, incognito, bent on seeing the Princess Eleonora, to whom he had once been affianced, and whom he had to yield up, for state reasons, to Crack, as the latter's price for entering the war. Gabor, a treacherous rascal dismissed from Crack's service, surprises Leopold and Eleonora at dawn, and receives two large diamonds as a bribe. He informs Crack, who has him gagged and shot, with Leopold a witness.

Leopold, lodged at last in the palace at Frankfurt, sent for Hensdorff, who, with other civilians, had painfully followed the progress of the victorious army.

"So, Sir, we arrive here at last!" said Hensdorff, grimly. "Nor have we been so long upon the road! Prince Christian has fulfilled his contract to the very letter."

"I have scarcely seen him, and not spoken to him," replied Leopold, hastily, "but every one shouts for him. I hear of nothing else. Count, at last I can breathe and think a little; since we left Limburg I have not had a second day's way on the march, always on the alert."

Hensdorff did not answer.

"What," asked Leopold, despondently, "shall I do?"

"You will be crowned," said Hensdorff, quietly. "Then, I think."

"Nothing."

LEOPOLD knelt before the Papal Legate; his purple mantle lined with ermine hung from his shoulders down the gilded steps. He held in one hand the heavy scepter, and in the other the glittering globe; the Imperial signet ring was on his finger, and he was girded with Caesar's Imperial sword; on his head was the Ducal bonnet of Austria.

The old cardinal, bent beneath the weight of vestments, that were as heavy as any warrior's cuirass, held above the young man's blond head the diadem of Saint Leopold. He was then able to move, and, with his heavy robe held up by pages, mount the steps which led to the Imperial Throne, arranged on the right of the altar, beneath a canopy that gleamed with golden eagles.

Leopold glanced round. His blue eyes flickered, from one to the other, caring for none of them; looking for one face only in all that gathered press. Near the steps of the throne he found it—the face of Christian of Kurland, rigid in his mantle over his uniform, with his hat under his arm. And, as Leopold gazed down at him, he gazed up at Leopold; for the first time since that day when Gabor had been shot in the bare field outside Limburg, the glance of these two men met.

Leopold drew back almost imperceptibly into the gorgeous recesses of his throne, and Christian, without moving a muscle, continued to gaze at him.

He sat stiffly on the throne while the solemn ceremonial worked to its splendid conclusion.

As the Latin chant continued to rise and fall on that still, incense-sweetened air, he slowly turned his head again and looked down at that group of nobles to his right; and there was General Crack, still looking at him, with no expression at all, but with an unblinking steadiness.

Again Leopold had to show himself to the men who had chosen him. The Papal Legate took him by the hand, and led him to the front of the altar, and made the gesture of presenting him to his Electors.

Three times they shouted for him, with a continuous and steady voice; but Leopold did not heed these shouts. He looked at one man only; Christian; and that man did not raise his lips, but remained with folded arms, listening and watching, silent, while the others gave their steady acclamations.

Leopold put his hand to his throat, where the gold cords that held his mantle tugged hard at his neck.

In silence he allowed himself to be disrobed, only giving a slight sigh as the portentous mantles were lifted from his tired shoulders. At the head of the most sparkling and resplendent cavalcade that Europe could produce, he rode through the streets of Frankfurt, with the man who had not acclaimed him by his side, and a train of princes behind.

Leopold turned to speak to the man who rode so silently beside him.

"KONJOLA TRULY A TRUE FRIEND," SAYS THIS MAN

Steel Worker Eager to Praise New Medicine; Finds Quick Relief from Stomach Ills

MR. EMORY S. FAIR

"I had trouble with my stomach for more than seven years," said Mr. Emory S. Fair, 1125 Jefferson street, Washington. "During a part of this time I was unable to continue my work as a steel worker. Gas formed after meals and pressed up around the heart cavity until I was short of breath and dizzy. This was a dangerous condition in my work. Constipation became so bad that I was forced to use cathartics daily over a period of weeks."

"After taking Konjola for three weeks I began to get improvement. As I continued with this medicine my ailments disappeared. Today I can eat what I wish without bloating or other discomfort. I am no longer constipated and do not find the use of cathartics to be necessary at any time. My appetite is excellent and I am taking on weight, strength and energy. Konjola truly has been a true friend to me."

Konjola, the new and different medicine, is a systematic treatment taken after meals. Quickly Konjola goes to the source of the ailments, cleansing and invigorating the ailing organs and giving abundant and glorious relief.

Konjola is sold in Bristol, Pa., at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

Panamanians Laugh When They Are Grief Stricken

 tery to the management. One of the most consistent theatre-goers in Colon is a widowed black woman with seven children. She appears at the box office in the form of a parade, her seven children trailing back of her. They all sit in the downstairs section in 25 cent seats.

The Panama newspapers designate with stars such pictures as are suitable for children.

The amusement likes of the Central American people are not unlike those of an American or English audience, except that "Westerns" still hold their own down here. Ken Maynard, Leo Maloney, Buzz Barton and Hoot Gibson are among the "Horse opera" heroes who always draw good houses.

A striking contrast is found, however, in the town of David (Daved) in the Panamanian cattle country 200 miles north of Colon. "Westerns" won't draw. The David cowboys' "meat" is comedy or society drama.

News pictures, especially with sound are very popular everywhere. Central American audiences are especially fond of music and loudly applaud each number. Theatres generally are being equipped for talking pictures. Admission prices range from 25 cents to 60 cents gold.

Robert Wilcox, of the Wilcox-Saenger company, which owns five theatres in Panama, came to Central America 30 years ago, a soldier of fortune and trader, opening his first film theatre in America 15 years ago. Wilcox is the sole honorary king of one of the San Blas Indian tribes. He is held in high esteem in every strata of life in Central America. He has made a fortune and, when he can get away from business for a few weeks goes cruising on his palatial yacht.

The film theatres, outside of the American canal zone houses, cater to three classes. First is the English speaking patron, which includes the Jamaica and West Indian negro. Next comes the all-Spanish speaking class, Panamanians, French, Italian and Spanish; and third, the native or laboring class, speaking a combination of Spanish and English as well as a patois. While a considerable number of persons in all three classes live in squalor and apparent poverty, they always seem to be able to produce money for lottery tickets and picture shows.

HULMEVILLE

Guests entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Peck, Main street, on Sunday were their daughter, Miss Anna Peck; and Miss Anna Blumenthal, of Kensington, Maryland.

Recently little Irene Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hopkins, of Pennsylvania Avenue, had her tonsils removed at the private hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner, Bristol.

The Misses Sarah and Isabelle Gill, of Philadelphia, were Sunday visitors among relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Gill, Jr., and daughter Shirley, of Port Chester, N. Y., week-ended with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gill, Sr., Main street.

Male Chorus Features Meeting at Newtown

 was practically devitalized by its formalism. The same danger exists today, said the speaker. The tendency today is toward too much of the outward and too little of the inward.

Referring to Prohibition, Mr. Ross ridiculed the demand made for "personal liberty." He declared personal liberty is ever subjugated to the good of the community or those about us. In any organization one's own liberty of action is subservient to the welfare of those about him. Even when one marries, he said, he must sacrifice some of his personal liberty.

Rev. T. R. Waggener presided, and was assisted in the devotions by Rev. T. N. Hyde, Rev. W. J. Bone and Mr. Speiser.

The speaker next Sunday will be Dr. Frank Green, headmaster at the Pennington Seminary. Dr. Green has been a welcome visitor to Newtown lecture platforms for years. He is a speaker of unusual ability, and always delights his audiences. The musical feature will consist of solos by Stephen Miller, Newtown's talented tenor. The meetings are held in Arcade Hall on Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock, and all men and boys are welcome.

Manufacturers Urge Voters To Support Grundy

 universally acclaimed to be the most comprehensive portrayal of the agricultural and industrial development of this Commonwealth, and of its relationship to the Federal Government, that ever had been presented before any public or official body.

"He spoke as the defender of Pennsylvania and all its people—and especially of its millions of wage-earners—and so ably did he appear before five antagonistic inquirers that he drew the unstinted applause of the press of the Nation.

"His appointment to the United States Senate in December, 1929, by Governor Fisher was not of his own seeking, but was greeted with the unqualified approval of the thinking and upright citizenship of all parts of our State.

"In no State in the Union are the wage-earners so dependent upon tariff protection for continuous and profitable employment as in Philadelphia. It is a matter of record and publicly admitted that when Mr. Grundy entered the Senate the tariff bill, as it then was being framed, was wholly unsatisfactory and especially disadvantageous to this State and all its people.

"The main changes in the bill which subsequently were made have been to the advantage of Pennsylvania and its people, and friends and antagonists alike conceded to Senator Grundy full credit for the energy, determination, knowledge and leadership which forced those changes in behalf of Pennsylvania and our workers.

"Without thought of his own political future, and confining wholly to Washington and the obligations which rested upon him as the sole Senator from Pennsylvania, during the absence of Senator Reed at the naval arms conference in London, he has devoted himself exclusively to the interests of this Commonwealth and its citizenship.

"His personal and political integrity has never been challenged. His courage has been proven under almost every conceivable circumstance. His entire career has been guided by an unending adherence to the fundamental principles of our form of government and by the highest ideals of public service.

"It was in accord with these precepts that he has steadfastly refused to make any entangling alliances with professional politics in his candidacy for nomination in the May primary.

"As Senator Grundy himself has put it, this is the people's fight far more than it is his own fight. We believe, therefore, that in this Senatorial contest intelligent self-interest can dictate but one course to the people of this Commonwealth.

"And in the light of these facts we respectfully ask the people in all walks of life in Pennsylvania to join with us in supporting the candidacy of United States Senator Joseph R.

Grundy in the primary election May 20th."

Former Teacher Will Wed Ex-Trentonian

 They were issued a marriage license at the Marriage Bureau.

Mr. Ross who is the son of John and Laura Stout Ross, was born in Hopeville, N. J. He was divorced from his former wife, Loretta Ross in New Jersey in 1926. Mrs. Consolloy was born in Trenton, N. J., the daughter of Frederick and Jean Whitman Larzelere. Her former husband died in 1925.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—Particular interest attaches to the above announcement from New York, because in April, 1926, Mrs. Consolloy was obliged to resign as principal of the Mercerville School after she was named as co-respondent in the Ross divorce case.

Vice-Chancellor Buchanan granted a divorce to Mrs. Ross, who then lived on Genesee street, from her husband, who resided on Atterbury avenue and operated a South Broad street garage, on grounds of unfaithfulness. It was charged that Ross had visited Mrs. Consolloy at her apartments on Jackson street.

Mrs. Consolloy had served at the Mercerville School for five years, but was advised that unless she resigned by April 10, 1926, the teachers' committee of the Hamilton Township Board of Education would hold a public hearing on charges of unbecoming conduct. Asserting her contract with the Hamilton School Board did not expire until the following June, Mrs. Consolloy retained counsel to fight, but eventually resigned. She announced she took such action to relieve the school officials and her friends of embarrassment, pending a proposed appeal of the Ross divorce case.

Enumerators Are Counting Noses in Bucks County

With reference to Question No. 23, a special form is provided to cover persons who did not work "yesterday or on the last regular working day."

There are five questions to be used "if this person has a job"—How many weeks since he has worked at that job? Why was he not at work yesterday? Does he lose a day's pay by not being at work? How many days did he work last week? How many days in a full-time week? And four in case the person has "no job of any kind." These are: Is he able to work? Is he looking for a job? For how many weeks has he been without a job? Reason for being out of a job?

The schedule for farmers is a long one, containing 233 questions. It covers the farm operator himself, farm acreage, pasture, drainage, farm tenures, farm rentals, farm values, farm debts, taxes and expenditures, farm machinery, co-operative marketing, number of domestic animals of various species, crops of all kinds, value of products, movement of farm population, etc. Sample schedules are sent to farmers well in advance so that they may figure out the data and be ready for the enumerator.

Women who decline to reveal their ages will not, as a matter of policy, be threatened with a fine or a term in prison. The census taker is at liberty to make his own guess. But most women are said to be frank about their ages. Information given is held secret and cannot be used to incriminate anyone. Thus, if a few thousand persons describe their occupation as "bootlegging," they will not be bothered because of their frankness. But the Census Bureau expects very few bootleggers to be honest about it; most of them have other ostensible occupations.

There are 574 supervisory districts where the census returns will be received and given a preliminary count before being sent on to Washington. Each census taker is paid according to the number of persons or farms he enumerates. He or she, that is, inasmuch as 20 to 25 per cent. of the enumerators are likely to be women. They are all supposed to finish their territory within two weeks after the census begins, in boroughs; 30 days in country districts.
